

Where Are They Now?

Seth Clark, a former Work4College student, has continued to make significant strides since completing the program. He joined W4C in the summer of 2022 and played a pioneering role in extending the program into the spring semester of 2023. During this time, he served as a student worker in our Work4College/Advancement Department. Despite still being in high school, he has taken on a full-time leadership position at Chick-fil-A, serves as a stand-in pastor, and is concurrently enrolled in college courses.

Seth is a versatile young man who is actively involved in various pursuits, including tennis and other high school organizations and clubs like UIL extemporaneous speaking. When asked about the impact of Work4College on his ability to manage

“It provided me with a valuable work experience”

- Seth Clark

these responsibilities, he responded, “While juggling work and school isn’t easy, the W4C Program provided me with a valuable work experience, a strong support network, and taught me the importance of effective time management. These skills have been instrumental in enabling me to achieve what I have today.”

Encourage someone who may benefit to apply for the program next year! If you have any questions, please e-mail Mason May at mmay@ntcc.edu or call 903.434.8246

